A CONVERSATION WITH
Dr. Charles Stanley

Life, Love & Legacy (Part 2)

In Part 2, Andy and his dad talk about patience, perseverance, photography, and the one thing Dr. Stanley prioritizes more than anything.

Discussion Questions

What part of the interview stood out to you? Did Andy and his dad touch on an area in which you'd like to grow? If so, what did they say that inspired you?

As a reminder, here are a few a few quotes from the interview:

On patience and perseverance:

- If I win I win. If I lose, I still win. My responsibility is to obey God and trust him with the consequences.
- We can't control outcomes anyway. When we try to control outcomes, a lot of times we just mess it up and make things more complicated.
- Every challenge that we face in life is eventually just a story we tell. Write a story worth telling.
- I'm always excited to see what God is going to do next, even in the down times.
- Without fail, God always brought me through every difficult situation. And some of them looked absolutely impossible.
- The current chapter in our story is not the final chapter in our story. So never give up.

On photography:

- One of the primary reasons I love photography is I'm always looking through the camera lens and seeing what God has done.
- I couldn't be more grateful for all the places I've been, and for the things I've seen.

On the most important thing:

- The most important thing in the world is your personal relationship with Jesus Christ.
- A personal relationship with God isn't something that comes and goes based on when you go church. You wake up talking to him all during the day.

What was it like to grow up with my dad as my dad? It was amazing. And I hope someday my kids will say the same thing about me. And if you have kids, I hope your kids will say the same thing about you.
