

LEADING THROUGH LEADING

THREE ESSENTIALS FOR NAVIGATING UNCERTAINTY

Part 3: Clarity

People want certainty, but sometimes that's not possible. When certainty is not an option, you can still offer them the next best thing.

Discussion Questions

1. Who do you feel responsible for during this season of uncertainty? Who is looking to you for reassurance?
2. Where do you fall on this continuum:

The Sky Is Falling ● ————— ● Unbridled Optimism
3. How does your answer to the above question impact your messaging to those who look to you for direction and hope?
4. Read Joshua 1:5–11. In these verses, God gives initial instructions to Joshua, the new leader of Israel, after Moses's death.
 - What stands out to you?
 - While these instructions were given specifically to Joshua, do you see principles that we can learn from?
5. What can you do to create more clarity in the midst of the current uncertainty?

Moving Forward

One of our roles as leaders is to do all we can to ensure that people don't lose hope. While we can't always provide certainty, we can provide clarity. And in times of disruption, clarity is enough.
